Open on use lat to as inte in October as the company will justify. Unequalled by any mineral waters in America for the cure of acid dyspepsia, kid-nev and bladder troubles uterioe ailments, gout, O'NEAL & LUCAS, diseases of the skin, catarrh affections, rheu-matism and functional heart troubles. IT IS AN UNFAILING SOLVENT OF CAL-OULI. These waters have proved of great value in many other disesses, but can be more confidently relied on in the above named than any other mineral springs in this country. I guar-antee a cure if curable by mineral waters. The baths—hot, cold and snower—are unexcelled anywhere. The new and elegant swimming pool of allianine water, the largest in the United astates, if not in the world, is especially attractive.
No eafer or better place for ladies or children to learn to swim. Plenty to fill their stomsch and new bels to rest them on Best mount-sin road: in Virginia; one handred dollars to the mile expended upon them tute epring. The air Capon being nearer to all the cities north of the Potomac than any of the Virginia springs of note by an average of a hundred and fifty miles, claims a large patronage on that score. For pleasure or health the traveler need not go further. Board, by the month, $12, $49 and $16, according to location. Send for pamphlets direct, or call on W S. A Cat that Batches Chickens.

A cat ewaed by Thomas Leonard, a South Brook yu mason, and which is new setting upon a nest of eags, recently baconed out two chickens, making the twenty first brood that she has hatched. The cat is a brindle, and is about three years old. She had one litter of kittens before she began to hatch chickens, but since she has usurped the place of a hen she nas refused the company of all other cate. About two years og; the cat, which is christened Tibby, found a warm res ing place in the nest of a setting hen, when the hen had gone to hust food, and became so fond of it that it refused to surrender it. There was a fight when the hen returned, and the cat was the victor, the hen retiring from the contest with one eye scratched out. The cat warmed the eggs every day faithfully, leaving the nest only for a meal, and soon hatched out the chickens. From all the twenty broods, numbering about fifty chickens, the cat has raised about twentyone. The maternal care the animal exhibited for the chickens was a constant surprise. She followed with her eyes the movements of every chick, and when it strayed too far she stepped softly after it, picked it up by the back of the neck and returned it to the company of the others. In her frolics she turned upon her back, took a chick between her paws and played with it. As soon as one brood of chickens was born she seemed restless until a new set of eggs was provided for her. At the same time she kept an eye upon her last brood, which she warmed beneath her fur at night in the same nest with the eggs. The chickens recognized the cat as their mother, and when she left the cage in which she was kept, they ran chirping after her. The out defended them against another cat and especially against a hen. Her grown-up childrens Tibby; never failed to recognize, and the memory of their feline mother aid not seem to desert the pullets. She played with one of her chickens until it was three or four months old, and always seemed to welcome it when it came where she was kept. In the hatching process she seems morose until she hears the first peep or feels the first throb of fifs in the shell. Then she draws the quickened egg to a point in the nest where can both warm and see it, and it the chick in pecking its way through the shell needs any asteeth. She has now two chicks, a day old and two that are about three weeks old. She huge them about her in her nest, and if one hops out grasps its neck caraculty between her teeth and carries it back -N. A Story of Blamarck's Youth.

Apropos of Prince Bismarck's birthday anniversary, celebrated last Friday, a pleasant remissise nee of his youthful days may not be out of place. Forty six years ago a young Swedish nobleman was studying at the Berlin University. One day he received a letter from au uncle it. Swiden, whom he happened never to have met in person, informing him that his first cousin. daughter of the relative in question, was about to mass through B rice on her way to the waters at Ems, and requesting that he would take charge of her during her brief sejourn in the Prussian capital, show her all its most interes:iog sights, and finally see her sately started upon her further journey. The young lady arrived at Berlin in due course, and was waited upon at her hote! by a stalwart young student who appounded bimselt as her cousin, and escorted her during the three following days, to mus ums, piorare galleries, &c., with indefatigable courtesy. On the fourth day he attended her to the Post Amt. whence she was to depart by diligence for Ems. As she was warmly thanking bim for all the attentions he had shown her, he requested her permission, before takeng his leave, to make confession of his sins.
"I must no longer, my dear cousin," he contiqued, "conceal from you that, as a matter of fact, I am not your cousin at ail. A friend of mine, however, has that honor, He is undergoing his examination at college, and confided to me the duries of carrying ou. your papa's wishes.
My name is Von Bismark.' This very lady visited Berlin last year, and took occasion to remind the Chanceller of the above incident, a variety of new styles; also a large stock of reiterating the expression of her gratitude for uis chivairous po iteness of nearly half a century ago. Interrupting her, with a geoial smile, Prince Bismarck observed: "Pardon me, madam, it is I woo am under obligations to you in that matter. Thanks to you. I was at that tme enabled to visit the museum, I have
